As a condition of employment, all employees undergo a background screening, including a lifetime criminal arrest record. This background screening requires fingerprint submission to the Federal Bureau of Investigations. Additionally, appointment or promotion to some positions may require additional investigations, including but not limited to credit history, interviews with friends and family of the employee, and an employment history and reference check. Law Enforcement Officer positions also require a medical evaluation and drug and alcohol screening. Do you have any concerns submitting to these types of investigations?

The Code of Conduct for Judicial Employees requires that all employees uphold the integrity and independence of the Judiciary. This includes but is not limited to avoiding impropriety and the appearance of impropriety in all activities, adhering to appropriate standards in performing duties of the office, engaging in certain behaviors inside and outside of the workplace and refraining from certain political activity. The Code of Conduct is available upon request at ksd_recruitment@ksd.uscourts.gov. Do you have any concerns about your ability to adhere to the Code?
